About Linda R. Euto

Linda Euto brings a wealth of expertise in media, communications, research, and evaluation to Project Advance. As the Associate Director for Instructional Design, Research, and Evaluation at SUPA, she leverages over three decades of experience across the private and public sectors.

Linda's diverse career includes roles as a writer, producer, and executive producer for ABC and NBC affiliates in Albany and Syracuse. She has also led instructional design and program management initiatives for various organizations, including the Syracuse City School District, non-profits, and the Chicago Children's Museum. Her work as an evaluation consultant further highlights her commitment to advancing education and community programs, particularly for diverse populations.

Linda earned her Doctorate in Education from Syracuse University's School of Education, her M.S. in Television, Radio, and Film from the S.I. Newhouse School of Communications, and her B.S. in Political Science from the Maxwell School of Citizenship. She has been an integral part of Syracuse University as a part-time professor in Instructional Design, Development, and Evaluation (IDD&E) since 2020, while also contributing to the veteran and military communities through her work at the D'Aniello Institute for Veterans and Military Families (IVMF) at Syracuse University.

A proud Syracuse University alumna, Linda's family holds seven degrees from SU, with her son set to graduate in May 2025. Residing in Skaneateles, NY, with her husband Jeremy and their dog Buddy, Linda enjoys boating, running, cooking, and traveling in her free time.
